OAKLAND COLLEGE

Oakland College was established by the Mississippi Presbytery, in April, 1830. The Presbytery at that time embraced all the Presbyterian Ministers and Churches within the States of Mississippi and Louisiana, and the Territory of Arkansas. The Presbytery has since been divided into seven Presbyteries, which constitute the Synod of Mississippi, embracing the Territory originally embraced by the Presbytery. The College remained under the control of the Mississippi Presbytery until the fall of 1839, when it was transferred to the Synod of Mississippi, agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and Charter.

The Synod holds but one meeting in each year, and the place of meeting is frequently at a great distance from the College; therefore, to provide against inconvenience which might result from this fact, the Synod has altered the Constitution (consistently with its provisions,) so as to appoint a Board of Directors, having all the original powers of the Presbytery; one third of this Board go out of office every year, and their places filled by re-appointment, or by the appointment of new members.— This Board, by appointment of the Synod, meets once a year at the College, and afterwards on its own adjournments. The annual meeting is on the Tuesday preceeding the first Thursday in April.
