Duty

Stern pilot over Life's tempestuous sea
I hear thy voice commanding "Follow me"
Is there no other course, no shorter way—
Out of this night, is there to be no day?
No light upon this blackness of despair
With doubts like demons stifling the air—
And fighting 'mongst themselves? Hark to their cry!
Waiting like the vultures for their prey to die!
My strength is failing, quick! stretch forth thy hand,
The darkness thickens, distant far the land,
The storm increases, hours yet till morn—
Hopes all are vanished, courage nearly gone,
But—"As thy days are, so thy strength shall be."
Then, thou who givest strength, O strengthen me.

Slowly the tempest wears itself away
And Lo! the heralds of the coming day
Spread from the East and gild the morning sky,
The storm is over, land is seen near by.
Then into port with quickening speed we come,
And drop the anchor, Safe! At last at home.
Duty! stern pilot of Life's changing sea—
Do thou lead on, I henceforth follow thee.

Chamberlain-Hunt Academy

A BACKWARD AND A FORWARD LOOK.

LIKE every life, Chamberlain-Hunt is linked by debt to the past and duty to the future. This institution has a heritage of which it may well be proud. It was founded through much sacrifice and out of a sense of great need. In the early years of the past century Dr. Jeremiah Chamberlain, a young graduate of Princeton, came as an Evangelist to Mississippi and saw the need for a college in the Southwest to provide for the young men of this section. He induced others to join him in founding Oakland College, which for many years sent forth a steady stream of educated young men. Some of the noblest sons of the South received there all their education, whose service in every walk of life was a tribute to their Alma Mater. Through all the stormy years preceding the Civil War Oakland College bore its share of the burdens in the educational field, and, like many other institutions, met disaster in the storm of '61-'65. Out of the wreckage left, its friends rebuilt and gave it another name, that of Chamberlain-Hunt Academy, named for the first President and for the founder of Oakland—Jeremiah Chamberlain and David Hunt.

Retrospective

The new institution entered a somewhat different field of labor, seeking to meet the need for secondary education. It has never undertaken college work; its supporters believing that there was a greater need for preparatory school work in the South than there was for college work.

And now a new day has come again. Another change was found imperative if the institution should keep pace with the progress of the Southern people. The demand is no longer for a classical course of study alone. The development of the South calls for young men trained not only for the professions but for leadership in commercial, engineering and agricultural lines of work. Accordingly steps were taken a few years ago that are fast leading toward the desired end. Manual Training shops have been installed, a course on agriculture begun that will be developed soon into one second to none in the South among this class of schools. An endowment of $100,000.00 was recently completed in order to carry forward the work along new lines and in a broader way.

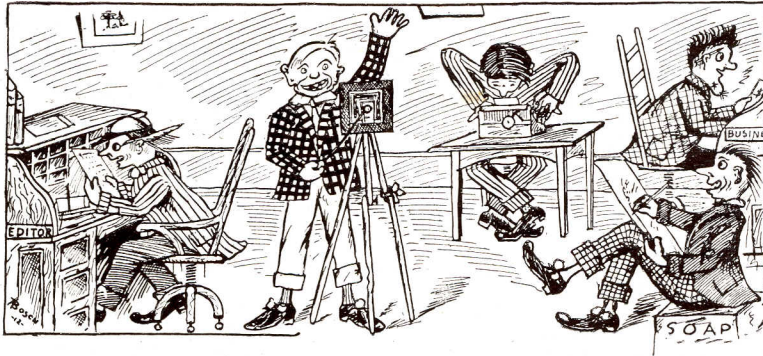

Prospective

Not all connected with the institution realized the change that has gradually taken place, nor do they see the goal toward which the school is moving. The old South scorned the idea of labor, and her sons never soiled their hands. Today the student that does not leave this school a worker and capable of working at something is scorned. To effect this transition in an institution with a heritage such as this one has required courage, perseverance, and far-sightedness. But the new conception has made friends out of its enemies and today the new Chamberlain-Hunt has a brighter future than ever in its history. Much more is needed yet. The new day has only begun, and we hope and confidentially expect to see wonderful changes occur in the years ahead of us.

History of the Class of '12

BUT FEW of the men who entered in 1909 are here to finish with their class. Some have been called home for reasons unavoidable. Some have been dismissed for various causes, while others—we regret to say—have simply dropped out of the race. New members have, however, joined us and filled the vacancies of our departed brothers.

Despite the losses of our old members we have striven to uphold the honors and traditions handed down to us as our inheritance. And through it all, our sole ambition has been to leave as a legacy to those coming in after years remembrance of a class which will spur them to greater things.

But as these flying years go by we shall often look back at the Old School, and with many a hearty hand-clasp renew in memory the pleasures of good fellowship, and recall the difficulties that we had to surmount, and the hard work we had to do, with a new unalloyed happiness.

Soon will come the parting of the ways, the farewell grip, the heartfelt word; when each of us will enter a new battle of much the same nature as hitherto, but of greater importance. May the influence and friendships formed at C. H. A. forever be an incentive to bring out the best there is in us and to reflect credit on the class of 1912.

W. M. GILLESPIE, Class Historian.

Class Prophecy

Have we ever stopped to think in this happy commencement time where and in what position we and our fellow classmates will be placed in the coming years? Let us consider each member of the class in his position in life in the distant future.

"Elder" Williams, after finishing Divinity School, will return to his Southern home and take up a prominent place in the religious circles and rise in prominence till in 1930 he shall return to C. H. A. and succeed to the position of President of his old-time school.

"Guy" Guthrie, called by closest friends "Guts," having finished his course in governing girls' schools as prescribed by a Meridian college, shall become President of a large girls' school, marry and "live happily ever after."

"Darling" Morrison, having become a fine lawyer in his home State, shall, during the recesses of court, teach his "Blondy" " $H_2 O_2$ " P. G. F. C. friend, Omega, to get (W) right and thus he shall win himself a home.

"Meek" Gillespie, sometimes called "Morf," shall become a famous doctor of Mississippi and shall rid his State of all germs, rising in prominence, and in 1943 shall see him in the position of "CHIEF BUG INSPECTOR."

"Squire" Wade, having graduated from a seminary with medals pinned all over his broad chest, shall assume the pastorate of one of the largest churches in his home town, and in this capacity shall "lead many into the fold."

"Jew" Goldman, having satisfied his desire "to stick," shall attend Georgia Technical School, graduate, and by the supervision of the building of a large railroad become widely known, and shall finally rest in the easy chair of "President of this Road."

"Rahl" Oliver, after attending the law department of Mississippi College for several years, shall graduate and make a reputation for himself in a famous case in the Capital of his State. His record being made and his success guaranteed, he shall seek his old-time friend, the P. G. F. C. "Brunette," to share his bliss.

Even now we can easily see "Pat" Murphy in the year 1925 working on some large office building. He and some other Patricks shall raid an "A. P. A." meeting, become entangled among flying bricks and retire from ("active") life.

Our worthy member, Frederick Montague Sprott, shall succeed to his father's farm near C. H. A., and the boll weevil and other bugs having been destroyed, he shall re-establish the agriculture record of this town.

"Tubby" Pettis shall occupy a large position in a machine shop, and learning his trade well shall return to C. H. A. and put the Manual Training Department in good working order. This in the year 1945.

"Duck Foot" Ferguson (W. J.) shall in a few years complete his course in architecture and shall draw plans for many large buildings and shall finally draw a winning hand and draw unto himself to be his better half his dear New Orleans friend.

"Cockie" Coker, having acquired the degree of C. E., shall assume active operations in the far West, and gain prominence in public affairs by the part he shall play in reclaiming the great arid deserts.

But "Arkansas" Smith has the brightest future of us all. His place of business shall glew with the light thrown off from three gigantic balls in front of his store, and in the windows the familiar sign, "Money to lean on everything," will meet the weary pedestrian's eye.

"Fish" Ferguson (L.) shall attend Tulane, obtain his degree and enter the insurance business. To share his success and enormous wealth he shall seek some "feminine" and having acquired this shall take up his abode on Easy Street.

"Billie" Busby shall rival even our greatest poets in production of sweet, melodious sonnets, and shall by lovely poems win for himself a home in the town of his old-time school, C. H. A. This will happen approximately 1912, as this is leap year.

"Scout" Whitfield shall come into possession of a rich Claiborne County farm, and by the aid of a member of the opposite sex from his home town (who is now very young), shall spend the rest of his days in happy married life.

"Barber" Hammond, being a "Cutter," shall in the near future, after a few years in his home town, return to C. H. A. and open a branch in which all tonsorial arts will be taught. We feel assured of his success by his present ability.

"Sidney" Austin, our old-timer, having finished his course in Capital Electricity, shall "shock" his classmates when they read in 1970 of how he has discovered "how to grow hair where the clippers slipped."

In 1925, during a visit to New Orleans, the metropolis of the South, where we may go to attend the meeting of the specialists and to mingle with those who have given their lives to the study of the human body, we will be seated in a great auditorium when a man of medium stature, erect, and with a tint of gray hair intermingled with that of natural color (mouse) parted on the right, shall step forward and proceed to call the assembly to order. With the dignity of a seasoned parliamentarian he will preside, and upon inquiring we will be surprised to learn that it is Dr. Agnew F. Field, better known by his classmates at Chamberlain-Hunt as "Frisso."

And lastly, Dick, our Vaedictorian, having graduated from the law department of "Ole Miss," shall take up a position with a large circus and from his soap box stand hand to the public such orations as:

"Step up, ladies and gentlemen; see the wild 'OSTAPHORMAMUTH,' the only one in captivity; largest, best and biggest show on earth, for the magnificent sum of one dime, ten cents, two nickels. Step up, ladies and gentlemen," etc.

This is the prophecy of the class of 1912.

A. F. FIELD.

Grits and Hash

After delving deeply into the treasures of classic literature we believe the following to be a truthful representation of a subject dear to the heart of every C. H. A. boy:

This is how Bill Shakespeare would have said it:

To eat or not to eat, that is the question. Whether 'twere better an aching void to nourish, or eating, run the risk of that prescription: "Take one at once and one each hour after."

Here is Longfellow's version:

Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Grits and Hash are but a dream;
Both are worse than green cucumbers,
For they are not what they seem.

Edgar Allen Poe would have hit it off like this:

Once upon a midnight dreary, as I pondered sick and weary
Over many a pill and capsule and the thought of many more;
Suddenly a thought came tapping at my mind like some one rapping:
"You had G. and H. for supper as you've often had before."
And alas! I could but stammer, while my brain throbbled like a hammer:
"So I did, but—never more."

Kipling would have remarked:

O twins celestial, known of old
To every school beneath the sun,
Beneath whose heavy hand we hold
Our own until our race is run;
Dear Grits and Hash, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget.

Jokes

"Laugh and the world laughs with you."

Senior (giving a toast): "Here's to our parents and teachers; may they never meet."

Freshman: "Benjamin Franklin's father was a wool dyer, but he soon changed his vocation, for he found that he could not live by dyeing."

First Boy: "What is a seed?"

Second Boy: "A seed is to a flower what an egg is to a hen."

Teacher: "Jimmy, suppose you had ten apples and ten oranges and gave nine-tenths away?"

Jimmy: "I'd have my head examined."

Milton was asked one day whether he would instruct his daughter in other languages. "No, sir," he replied, "one tongue is sufficient for any woman."

Major: "Allen, tell me what you know of the Mongolian race."

Allen: "I was not there, Major; I went to the ball game."

He pressed her to his heart,
The color left her cheek;
It stayed upon his overcoat,
For just about a week.

"A point, it is a funny thing,
It's neither long nor wide,
It has no back, it is not thick,
It has no other side,
It isn't there, and yet it is,
It has no limber joint;
So do not think you are done because
You cannot see the point."

Major (in Geometry): "Allen, what does the line A B represent?"

Allen: "At bat."

A mouse will make a woman scream with fright,
While a rat will only make her hair stand upright.

"Can the butter-fly because the tomato-can?"

"Can a sardine box?" "No; but an oyster can."

“Did you ask Mississippi if she would let Delaware Georgia’s New Jersey?”

“No; but Alaska (I’ll ask a).”

“Well, Bill, I’ll tell you how it is: You see I married a widow, and this widow had a daughter. Then my father, being a widower, married our daughter, so you see my father is my son-in-law.”

“Yes, I see.”

“Then, again, my step-daughter is my step-mother, isn’t she? Well, then, her mother is my grandmother, isn’t she? I am married to her, ain’t I? So you see that makes me my own grandfather, doesn’t it?”

“Our car kicked.”

“All right on behind there,” called the conductor from the front of the car, “Hold on,” cried a shrill voice in the rear. “Wait till I get my clothes on.” The passengers craned their necks eagerly. A small boy was putting a basket of clothes on the rear platform.

Overheard in the forest:

Said the tree to the river,

“I’ll fall across you.”

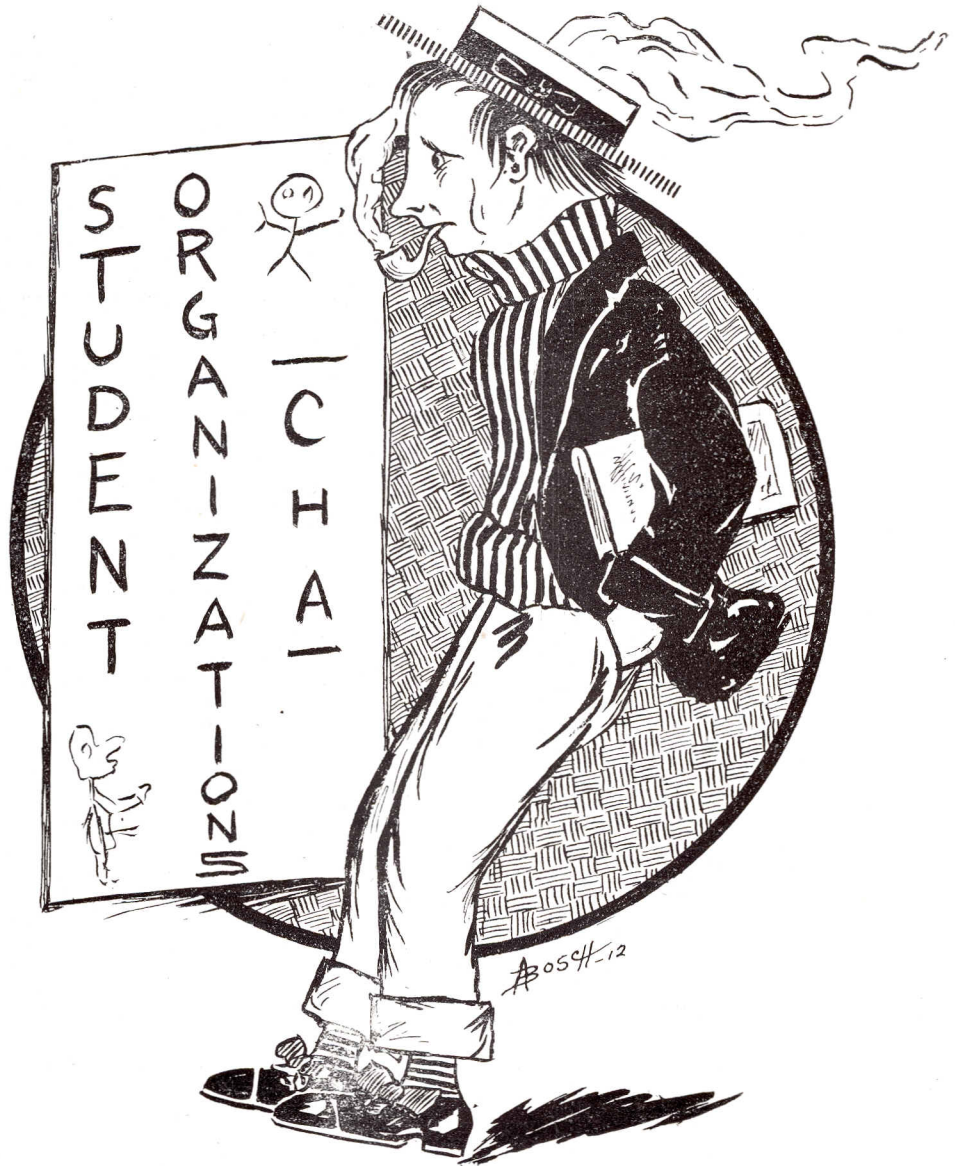

Said the river to the tree,

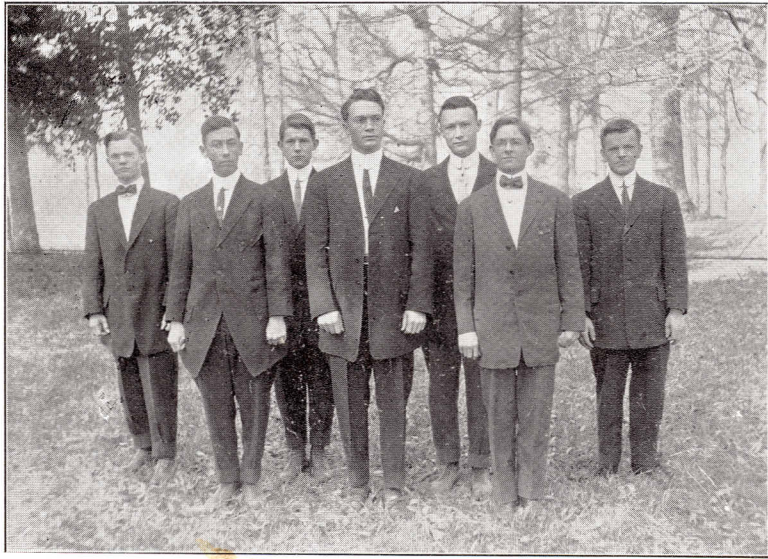

“I’ll be dammed if you do.”

The Call

I

The fields are white for the harvest,
And yellow with ripening grain,
And the hand of God is apparent
In the Sun and the Wind and the Rain;
But the workers, where are the workers?
Does the call go forth in vain?

II.

The cause is urgent, my brother,
And sacrifice must be made;
The voice of duty is calling;
That voice must be obeyed.
The work is on in earnest—
Are you—am I—afraid?

III.

On the boys and girls of the present,
In a few short fleeting years,
The burden of Life will be pressing,
With its trials, its hopes and its fears.
Now, how do you want them to bear it?
Shall they bear it with smiles or with tears?

IV.

Then lend a hand to the harvest,
While the work goes bravely on,
And the end shall be triumphant,
The Crown deserved and won.

The Adelphic Literary Society was founded in Oakland College, the predecessor of Chamberlain-Hunt Academy, before the Civil War. She has furnished this country some of the grandest men in the history of the State of Mississippi. To be a member of such a society is one of the honors of C. H. A., but however glorious her past, the Adelphic closes her banner year with the session of 1911-12. Let us hope and prophesy that the next year she will have a still grander year and instead of having three of the Annual Debaters from our ranks, let us have four.

The Columbian Club cannot claim the distinction of age or of great numbers. But it can claim as devoted a band of fellows as ever associated themselves for self-improvement. The Club was organized by Prof. J. T. Beall, who was a teacher in this institution during the session of 1908-09, in honor of his club at college. It has had a most successful career, and has taken its share of the honors. It has steadily grown each session and has maintained the high standard of work laid out for it by its founder.

The C. H. A. Band was organized about the fifteenth of January, and though late in starting they have indeed done splendid work. It is composed of fifteen good, live members, who can be relied upon to do their part.

The first C. H. A. Band was organized in 1909, this making the third year that the school has had a band. The organization of this session is by far the best the school has ever had.

When Dr. Melvin was made President of the C. H. A. it was, as he stated it, a "hobby" to have a brass band in the school, so, with this idea before him, he sought to get the boys interested in band work. He now feels that he is reaping the reward of his labors.

The Band owes a lot of the credit of its success to the people of the community, who have so kindly extended their hearty co-operation.

The Band has successfully staged plays in several towns over the State, and expect to make this an annual event, so the band members are always found on the field and never on the bench.

The Mess Hall

I.

Where is the spot of priceless worth,
The place which causes so much mirth,
The very dearest spot on earth?
The Mess Hall!

II.

What do we think of when we are ill
And taking physics by the gill,
Where could we go and eat our fill?
The Mess Hall!

III.

Where do we have such dainties rare,
Such nice fresh bread and water clear,
Where do we have this tip top fare?
The Mess Hall!

IV.

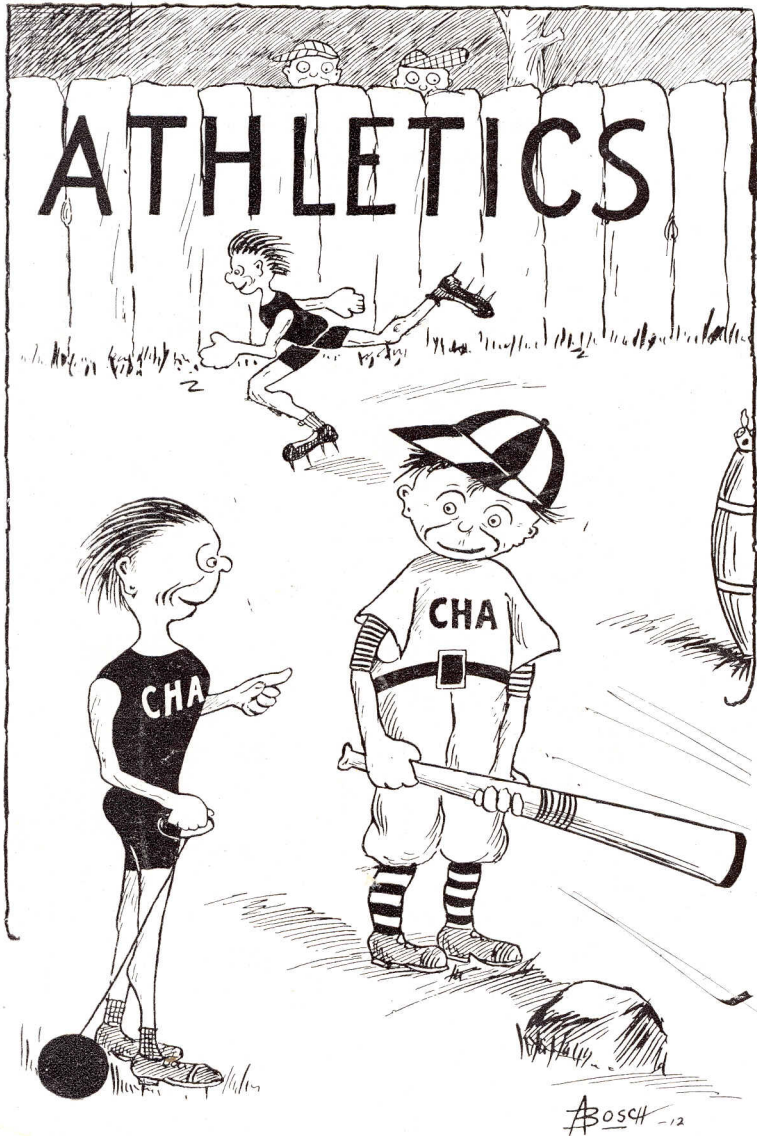

Where do we when we so incline
Discard both forks and grace divine,
Where do we have such manners fine?
The Mess Hall!

V.

Oh, spot of all our earthly bliss,
How could we all by thy pleasure miss,
Thou! sweeter than the sweetest kiss?
O Mess Hall!

VI.

Then as we travel on Life's way,
In all our duties day by day,
Thy memory will forever stay,
Our Mess Hall!

Two of the probable outfielders are able to play on the diamond, and the infield can be shifted so handily that accidents, unless unusually numerous or serious, will not perceptibly weaken the team's fielding strength.

THE SCHEDULE

April 3, 4, 5—New Orleans Boys' High School, Home Grounds.
April 8, 9—Memphis University School, Home Grounds.
April 15—Vicksburg High School, Vicksburg.
April 16, 17, 18—Clark Memorial College, Newton.
April 19—Vicksburg High School, Vicksburg.
April 27, 29, 30—Southwestern Presbyterian University, Home Grounds.
May 6, 7, 8—Clark Memorial College, Home Grounds.

A FEW WORDS.

Two facts, viz.: that every village and county cross-roads has a baseball team of some description, and that there are comparatively few football teams outside of our schools and colleges—combined to make the latter game the more popular of the two at our educational institutions. It is right that this interest in the game, which is distinctively a college game, should be manifested, and we are hearty well-wishers for the prosperity of the game. Furthermore, we hope that the time will come when the preparatory and high schools of Mississippi and Louisiana will be organized into an athletic association with a sufficient backing of public interest and of funds to put this section of the South on the athletic map. Here is an opportunity for philanthropic men of means to make safe investments in an enterprise that will pay handsome dividends in the development of an otherwise neglected phase of man's nature—not only his physical make-up, but his mental being as well, for there is without doubt a very important psychology of athletic training contests.

But because of conditions which we will hope will vanish with the passing of time, it is next to impossible to have what can be a really successful foot-ball season at C. H. A. at present. When we consider, then, that all branches of school athletics go hand in hand, and success in one department breeds and stimulates success in another, it is really surprising that C. H. A. can do credit to herself, as she does, in baseball.

For the season of 1912 we have the brightest outlook we have had for several years. There is material in plenty—some in the rough, 'tis true, but capable of being developed into a first-class team. It is likely that in the first game our Reds will show nervousness, and inexperience, but they will just as certainly show marked improvement before the end of the opening series, and we confidently expect them to hit their stride and win the important games of late April and early May.

The Track Team was organized for the first time in 1911. Although we had very little training and a poor track on which to train, we won thirteen points at the Mississippi Inter-Scholastic Meet at Jackson, Miss., May 4th, 1911, Tigert winning the 880-yard run in 2:15 over twenty-two contestants. We had two men, Tigert and Butler, in the final heat of the 100-yard dash, Tigert winning second place. It was universally conceded that these men would have won first and second places had it not been for an unfortunate stumble which hindered both very much. We won the relay race (one mile) in 3:45 1-5, Butler taking first quarter, Caldwell second, Kearney third, covering a man, advancing C. H. A. to second place, and Tigert, who ran fourth, covering another man and winning the race against great odds.

We are fortunate to have with us this year Prof. O. O. Dukes, of Clemson College, S. C., Track Team as coach. Through his untiring efforts we have at last attained a very good track, and under his coaching we are developing a team which will no doubt win first honors at Jackson. At present the records of the men are as follows:

TIGERT—100-yard dash, 11 sec.	Running high jump, 4 ft.
1-4-mile, 54 4-5 sec.	10 in.
1-2-mile, 2:15.	440-yard dash, 58 sec.
Running broad jump, 18 ft.	STEBBINS—100 yards, 11 1-5 sec.
7 in.	Running broad jump, 18 ft.
KEARNEY—100-yard dash, 11 1-5 sec.	6 in.
220-yard dash, 24 3-5 sec.	Running high jump, 4 ft.
440-yard dash, 56 sec.	7 in.
Running broad jump, 17 ft.	440 yards, 59 sec.
8 in.	BUSBY—100 yards, 11 1-5 sec.
SKINNER—100 yards, 11 sec.	220 yards, 25 1-5 sec.
220 yards, 23 2-5 sec.	440 yards, 59 3-5 sec.
Running broad jump, 18 ft.	SCOTT—One mile, 4:57
8 in.	880 yards, 2:17.
	440 yards, 57 3-5 sec.

Therrell and Worrell are showing up well on the mile. Hubbard and Fox are doing well with the weights. All are showing up splendidly on the hurdles.

Why Not?

I.

The summer girl upon the sand
In bathing suit quite gay—
Talks sweetly to the summer man
In quite the usual way.

II.

Now, why should not the winter girl,
In her kimono dressed,
Receive her beaux pajama-clad
Instead of Sunday Best?

III.

It seems to me the latter plan
The safer of the two,
Because there are more clothes to see
And therefore less of you.

To Her

I ask thy pardon ere I have begun—
A candle trying to outshine the sun—
But I must needs describe as best I can
With faulty methods, being but a man,
Thyself—as thou to others dost appear,
Divinely sweet and most divinely fair.
Thy face—but why in feeble words to tell
Its wondrous beauty or its wondrous spell
That holds the heart a willing captive bound,
A slave to follow all the world around.
Thy form—but words break down and fail again,
What need to try—all efforts are in vain.
Thyself a poem, and the length I get
Is five feet four—perhaps a little less.
A poem bound in soft and snowy white,
A dream of beauty and of sweet delight;
A poem that I beg thee let me read—
My fond desire and my greatest need,
These feeble lines I now bring to an end
And I am honored to subscribe myself—
